May 2023: Heart of the Wild Newsletter

May Wildlife Tip Fledglings

Baby birds are fledging this month. Once fully feathered, they hop out of the nest onto the ground. Then they hop higher and higher until they feel the wind under their feathers and take flight. It may take a day or two of trying.

Meanwhile, parents will feed and protect it on the ground. Eventually the fledgling flies back to the family tree where parents continue to teach it how to find food, avoid predators, and socialize. If you witness this miracle of nature, you can help by keeping your dogs and cats away on that eventful day. Only if it is injured or not feathered do you take the baby away from its family environment and call Clearwater Sanctuary for help at 985 630-1009.
